Learn to read your own compositions from seasoned performers in an intimate workshop setting. Then apply what you've learned at a community reading the following week!

Members of the ARTicuLIT Readers Theater will work with East on Central writers on text analysis, pacing, voice control, and other skills involved in giving a dynamic oral presentation before the microphone. They'll send you home to practice and the following week we will do an evening of readings to test out what we've learned.

Workshop: Thursday, January 28, 2010, 7:00 PM
